Posted by Brett Boston on Aug 22 '13

Anaheim, CA – Today, the First Responder Network Authority (FirstNet) entered into a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the Association of Public-Safety Communications Officials (APCO) International to work cooperatively to foster and promote useful and effective mobile applications (apps) for public safety and emergency response purposes.

Through the MOU, the parties intend to assist each other to identify recommended or vetted public safety or emergency response-related apps and share feedback on how apps are making a difference for public safety or could be improved. The parties will also collaborate on ways to encourage the public safety community, the general public and the technology sector to visit AppComm, participate in focus groups, and respond to related information requests issued by FirstNet.
